Braille2000 License Terms

Braille2000 software is available in the following forms:

Monthly Subscription

For a monthly fee (paid in advance) you can purchase a time-limited Right To Use License* for Braille2000 software. While active, the user has the same privileges as with the Premium License described below.

Monthly Subscriptions are billed by calendar month except for a prorated initial fraction of a month. Payment may be by automatic credit card transaction renewing the subscription month-by-month or by check or by purchase order. Prepayment can be for any number of months (in order to reduce the number of payments needed per year, for the convenience of the client).

The client may start and stop the Monthly Subscription at any month boundary.

If the Monthly Subscription lapses for non-payment (without being formally cancelled), all months in the lapse period must be paid when payments resume and the Monthly Subscription returns to active status.

Budget License

For a one-time fee you can purchase an enduring Right To Use License* for Braille2000 software. Such a license will continue in force without any additional payments. The license will be valid only when used with Braille2000 software that has been released within a 90 day period immediately following the date of issue of the Budget License. When used with such software releases, the Budget License will operate forever. Braille2000 software releases that are more recently released will not operate (except for limited evaluation purposes).

Upon paying an update fee you can obtain a new 90 day period in which to acquire the latest release(s) of the Braille2000 software. Such a 90 day period need not be and would normally not be a period of time immediately following any other 90 day period (the update fee is normally paid sporadically if at all).

Note that the "Budget" setting is held within the Key device. If you move your Budget License key to a computer on which a too-recent version has been installed, the Key will not function.

Premium License

For a one-time fee you can purchase an enduring Right To Use License* for Braille2000 software with enduring right to install and use all new releases of Braille2000 software.

Right To Use License

The Braille2000 Right To Use License permits one person to use one copy of the Braille2000 software on one computer at any given moment. The software may be loaded on many computers so long as a given license is not used on more than one computer at any one time.

All Braille2000 software is provided strictly “as-is” without any warranty of any kind. You are encouraged to evaluate the software before you buy any Right To Use License for it. During the first 60 days of a Budget License or a Premium License, if you find the software to be unsuitable to your needs, you may return the license for a full refund. You can return a Monthly Subscription in the first 14 days for a full refund.

Current releases of Braille2000 software may be obtained via the Internet from www.braille2000.com and by built-in features of Braille2000. Although you can obtain the latest “Setup” file for Braille2000, if you have a Budget License, it may not operate if your license or paid update point is more than 90 days in the past.

Manifestation of the Right To Use License

The Braille2000 Right To Use License is manifest by way of a license Key that can be physical or network-based. A physical Key can be one of: a special diskette; a serial-port plug-in device; a USB plug-in device (two varieties). A network Key can be served from a client service computer (for use on a client LAN) or from a Computer Application Specialties Company server computer (for use anywhere in the world via the Internet).

All physical license Keys have a lifetime warranty covering failure, wear and tear, and accidents so long as the Key (or broken pieces thereof) exist and are presented to Computer Application Specialties Company for warranty replacement. There is no warranty coverage for loss or theft or for any accident that totally destroys the Key.

A Key can be in one of three states: permanently active, expiring, or expired. Expiring-type Keys contain a timing device and an expiration date: when the date is reached the Key becomes expired and does not function.

Lost non-expired keys can be replaced only when the following conditions are met:

1. The Key is in fact unrecoverable, because either its location is unknown or its location is totally inaccessible.
2. A signed written statement is provided describing how it is known that the Key is in fact unrecoverable and what steps have been taken to try to recover the Key, and that the particulars of the loss are deemed reasonable by Computer Application Specialties Company.
3. A Key Replacement fee of $350 (per Key) is paid, in advance (purchase orders are not accepted without payment up front).

Lost expired keys can be replaced by paying a $35 (per Key) fee.
